Flock devices: 6 plate readers and 2 video cameras

A plate reader reads plates. A video camera watches the people in front of it. The county's portal says data is kept 7 days.

"But I have nothing to hide."

A Kansas police lieutenant was charged with using one of these systems to stalk his estranged wife. In independent tests, as many as 1 in 10 reads come back wrong, and people have been pulled over at gunpoint over a misread plate. Sources: KWCH; Institute for Justice.

This is not left or right. It is whether a private, out-of-state company gets to track a whole community, with no warrant and no record of a public vote before the cameras went up.
